

Overview of results

The NORAH study systematically examined how traffic noise affects health, well-being, and quality of life. This overview presents the most important results from the individual studies – concise and to the point.